Its wide range of disciplines pitches competitors against each other in a test of initiative, strategic thinking and team spirit while pushing their physical fitness, sporting skills and driving ability to the absolute limit. It is total adrenaline adventure.....

The 2003 Challenge

The Challenge was inaugurated in April 2003, when a thrilling four-week competition began in New York with the Tangiers Orange painted Land Rovers taking Broadway by storm. From there the competition moved northward to the White Mountains on the rugged Eastern US Seaboard before heading to the breathtaking countryside of South Africa and on through the remote Pilbara region of Western Australia to urban showpiece on Sydney's famous harbour. The final stage of that Challenge took place in America's 'Wild West' where Belgian fighter pilot Rudi Thoelen emerged victorious from a cliff- hanging finale in the Moab desert
